1938 SOUTH DAKOTA NATIONAL CORN HUSKING CONTEST

In the early 1920's through 1941 corn husking contests were very popular events on the local, state and national levels. National contests were broadcast live on nationwide radio. In 1936 TIME magazine proclaimed corn husking to be the fastest growing sporting spectacle in the world.

In 1938 the National Corn Husking Contest was held at the Jim and Nellie Jensen farm near Dell Rapids, north of Sioux Falls. This was a real festival. They had a contest queen, Venita Apply, and a two mile parade with seven bands. There were concession stands, farm machinery displays, a miniature Mr. Rushmore replica, doctors and hundreds of police officers. The spectator crowds were estimated to have been between 125,000 and 130,000 people. It was said to have been the largest gathering in South Dakota up to that time. As a comparison, the unveiling ceremony of Teddy Roosevelt's bust on Mr. Rushmore in 1939 only attracted 12,000 attendees.

Contestants came from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and two from South Dakota. Ted Balko of Redwood Falls, Minnesota was declared champion husking 22.64 bushels in the allotted time. He was also the champion in 1934. These champions were idolized like some of today's entertainment and sports figures. The media wanted interviews and manufacturers wanted the champion huskers to endorse their products.

Above is a postal cover with the November 3, 1938 Sioux Falls cancellation commemorating this South Dakota event held 22 miles north of Sioux Falls near Dell Rapids.

The hand corn husking contests continue to this day, although at a greatly diminished scale. The 2013 National Corn Husking Contest will be held October 19th in Greenville, Ohio.
